

THREE SQUADS OF "WATER WAGON" COPS ON THE JOB

Another, Consisting of Twelve Patrolmen and Sergeant, Is Detailed To-Day.

WALDO IS KEPT BUSY.

New Force of 2,000 Men Will Ultimately Cost This City $6,000,000 Yearly.

Another squad of twelve men and a sergeant was appointed to duty to-day along the route of the new aqueduct, making three squads which have thus far been detailed. The three are now stationed at Peekskill, Garrison and the Ashokan dam itself, which is the great supply station and reservoir proper. When two thousand men have been appointed, uniformed and housed in the police districts throughout the great artificial waterway now building, and which is destined to forever supply New York with adequate and untailing water, the unique police force will have been established to be maintained for many years.

Chief Rhineland Waldo, former Deputy Commissioner of Police, who is at the head of the new force, is grasping now with its working details, uniforms, hours of duty and quarters for the men. He said to-day that a great deal of the detail has practically been decided upon, but now awaited the official sanction of the Board of Water Supply.

Rules Are Now Ready. Rules and regulations adequate to such a force have been printed and will be distributed among the members of each squad at each barracks. The barracks will consist of wooden buildings, containing a dormitory, mess-room, kitchen and reading or lounging room. There will be a stable annex to each building for the housing of the horses, for every man is to be mounted. The uniforms will consist of khaki jackets, adding breeches, sombrero and belt. In the belt will be sheathed a club. It has not yet been decided to arm the men with revolvers. Chief Waldo believes that the revolver is indispensable to the force, however.

Four Hours of Patrol Duty. In the barracks the men will provide for themselves as to mess and bedding. They may contract for such supplies and services if they choose. Tours of patrol will cover a period of four hours, with eight hours off, and a general inspection service will be in vogue at all times. To-day Chief Waldo will also apply to the Civil Service Board for a list of men eligible for appointment as sergeants, and in this capacity men experienced in the army, navy and police will be preferred, but the age limit of forty years for sergeants will be observed. Patrolmen are not eligible above thirty-five years.

Several Arrests Made. The men already on patrol have to seek their own lodgings pending the building of barracks. These men have already made several arrests. One prisoner, charged with carrying a loaded revolver, was committed to prison for six months in default of a fifty-dollar fine.

"That is the brand of justice that we like to hear about," said Chief Waldo. "There are too many irresponsible traveling up country with loaded arms, and the more strict the degree against them the better will be the results all round. The route of the great waterway which these policemen are to watch over day and night will eventually extend into ten counties, having branches as recently situated up State as Albany County.

To Cost $6,000,000 a Year.

All the expenses attending the arrest and conviction of persons taken into custody by the special police must be borne by the city of New York, and this includes the expense of the prisoners committed to jail. The cost of the police will ultimately reach four millions a year, and the incidentally two millions more. It is estimated. The force can be called into New York at any time for action in emergency demands.

WITH BREWERY 25 YEARS.

William Rennecke, general manager of the Lion Brewery, celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of his connection with that company on Monday. When he reached his office he found most of the employees waiting for him. They remembered him with several handsome gifts, and he stopped business long enough to permit them to drink his health.

POPULAR ACTRESS WHO MADE GREAT HIT IN LONDON

MARIE DRESSLER

MARIE DRESSLER BACK FROM LONDON

Actress Will Be Here Three Weeks and Return to Repeat British Success.

Marie Dressler, fresh from her London triumph, was a passenger on the Lusitania, which arrived to-day after an uneventful passage. She had remained in her stateroom during the greater part of the voyage, catching up, she said, with the latest run of feverish London literature. She denied that she had married in Liverpool or had any intention of getting married. Speaking of her London success, she said: "They told me before I went to London that I must be very prim and conform to certain hard-boiled standards. But I didn't just see it that way. I was going to try my old bow on them and see how they would take it. You know the rest—it was a hit from the start. I am going back after a three weeks' engagement I have with Percy Williams."

Other passengers on the Lusitania were Mr. Ogden Goelet, the Hon. Lady Herbert and Sir James Heath.
